

Health News (Week 36 - 2020)

By Robert Redfern

Hello and Welcome to my Thursday Newsletter

Because of Con-A-Virus, many thousands more people are reading my emails and posts. These after being shared by you, the long-time readers.

Because many are meeting me for the first time, they don't really know who I am

I get emails and messages asking about me

Questions including:

Am I a doctor?

What are my qualifications?

Where do I get the information for my books?

I think it is critical for everyone to understand where I come from, to understand my success, helping hundreds of thousands of people to get healthy.

After all, they may be trusting me with their life.

In the last 30 years, hundreds of thousands of people have sought my help from around the world.

They were suffering from: cancer, heart disease, infertility, macular degeneration, back and joint problems, autoimmune diseases and many more health problems.

However!

- I have no degrees of any kind
- I have no qualifications in medicine
- I have no desire to have such education since I now believe much of what is taught in these courses is wrong.

So, how did I write 30 books on critical health problems that have worked for hundreds of thousands of people?

How come I am helping to educate so many people that pharma drugs do not get them healthy and are really only recommended in life-threatening situations or a few rare conditions

I have to go back a long way to 1962.

My education after I left school was to become an electronics technician, provided by the company (Metropolitan-Vickers), who gave me a chance in spite of not being qualified.

I was able to pass the interview by explaining my knowledge of the electrical system of motorcycles.

I had been repairing and riding since I was age 11.

The interviewer realised I had a passionate technical mind.

My First Realisation

So, I had my first realisation that being passionate about something will take you a long way.

I split my time between six months at college and six months experiencing the different facets of design and manufacturing in the factory.

When I qualified at aged 20, I was part of a team commissioning the UK's first digital computers (The AEI 1010) at Metropolitan-Vickers in Trafford Park.

I only stayed for 12 months as I could see that the company with its 26,000 staff and poor culture was doomed to failure. So, I left in 1967 to try my hand at business.

My Next Realisation

Soon after leaving Metropolitan-Vickers the company failed and ceased to exist. I realised then that 26,000 employees (many very clever educationally, many with PhDs) were not collectively (with common-sense) intelligent enough to save that company.

After I got married in 1970, with my wife Anne and first child we moved to North Wales to a smallholding and ended up with a Wood-Burning Stove and Heating business. We had three children, 2 goats, a dog, 3 ducks and lots of land to grow food. It was a great 17 years but in the end was blighted by some bad news.

My Next Realisation

I received the news that my 62-year-old mother had died suddenly from lung disease. Not long after, my 64-year-old father was diagnosed with cancer and subsequently died.

I immediately set about researching why the doctors in our free healthcare system had not prevented this from happening. The realisation I found was that doctors do not tend to get people healthy, they mostly just look after the disease; treating symptoms, not causes.

Doctors whole training is decided by the pharmaceutical industry who brainwash all information out of the doctors' minds that nutrition and lifestyle can cure disease. More to the point, many of the drugs that doctors are told to prescribe have severe side effects and can even lead to death.

My Next Realisation

Although we had tried to live a healthy life on our smallholding, my research showed that there were many facets of getting and staying healthy. Especially needing a really healthy diet as the foundation of good health.

As an example, I was not as smart as my wife Anne and I did eat junk foods, especially when I was on the road. I suffered from many niggling health problems. It took a few years before I was able to stop this habit.

Next Step – Dealing with stress. It was becoming topical that stress was an integral part of health problems. We started to sell relaxation tapes after I successfully used one to get over my terrible fear of flying.

In 1987 I invented a Smart Watch (calling it the StressWatch and HealthWatch) and patented it. The sensors on the watch took signals from the skin and displayed the stress levels of the wearer. It showed how stress could be reduced very quickly just by breathing correctly. Unfortunately, I ran out of funding on this development and had to let the patent lapse.

The next development was our Electronic Acupressure device. We purchased an early model device and Anne used it on her father's arthritic knee. To be fair we were all surprised he was soon able to resume our long walks without a twinge. This led me to develop the HealthPoint™, a more advanced and user-friendly device.

HealthPoint™ is still in production 30 years later.

It is used for 160 different Human Conditions shown in the manual, including reversing Macular Degeneration, treatment on horses, and dogs, to name but a few.

Next came ActiveLife™ to deliver the most complete multi-vitamin available, then MSM+Silver™ Drops and MaxiFocus™ to partner with HealthPoint™ for treating Macular Degeneration.

In 2000 I introduced Serrapeptase to the world wide internet as well as a powerful Curcumin formulation. The results from these nutrients were so dramatic that I wrote the book, The MiracleEnzyme™.

This shows how these supplements and others could help an array of health issues.

More books came thick and fast as I developed action plans for all of the main conditions causing premature death and disability, including what killed my parents. You can view and download my eBooks HERE

My Next Realisation

How do we get healthy from virtually every health problem causing premature death and disability?

For most conditions, you don't need any medical degrees or qualifications in medicine to get or keep healthy.

However, it does take Innate Intelligence or Common-Sense Intelligence + Dedication to be healthy or regain health.

My definition of Common-Sense Intelligence is an innate understanding of cause and effect.

An example is the old saying 'Give a man a fish, and you feed him for a day. Teach a man to fish, and you feed him for a lifetime'.

I convert this too, 'Give a person a drug, and they feel better for a while. Teach a person how to be healthy, and they are better for a lifetime'.

An example of educated intelligence is that which is received by medical doctors. Their measure of intelligence is not measured by how many people they cure. In fact, it is not even downgraded no matter how many people they kill with their drugs. I cannot comprehend they can be credited with Common Sense Intelligence and my point is that they (and everyone) has to have both to be an effective human being.

Common Sense Intelligence

To cure any disease, you have to deal with the causes.

These include:

- Stopping eating factory processed foods and drinks
- Stopping eating high sugar foods and drinks (e.g. grains, cereals, sugar drinks, etc)

- Stopping consuming anything that has chemicals contained in them.

Common Sense Intelligence also says that you need to get better habits to be able to prevent disease and promote good health, these include:

- Eating fresh (or frozen) vegetables, fruits, nuts, seeds, pulses, etc. (organic when possible) plus wild seafood and pasture-raised meat (for non-vegan)
- Consuming around 3 litres of pure water over the day (with a small amount of bicarbonate of soda added for extra benefits)
- Supplementing the critical nutrients missing from the foods grown on now deficient soils
- Walking for more hours than sitting down
- Breathing correctly all of the time (diaphragmatic breathing whilst standing or laying down)

Yes, there are also numerous herbs/spices/nutrients that help us back to health and many of them can be in our daily foods or from supplements. The point is there are many things that can be effective, and many things that may or not essential, most of which are common sense!

What I've learned in the last 30 years is that passion to achieve good health (naturally) always works (or at least in 99% of all cases).

My Qualification?

- I am passionate about being super fit and healthy at every age.
- I am passionate about researching the studies that prove the nutritional and lifestyle changes for good health.
- I am passionate about helping others to be fit and healthy.
- I am passionate about exposing the Pharma/Medical Cartel for the danger they are and they are now becoming more dangerous with their worldwide plan to vaccinate everyone with their dangerous drugs.

Remember

If the Pharma/Medical Cartel were fit and proper people to look after your health then why is there so much sickness and disease?

Why are they continually fined $/£ Billions for fraud, killing people, and seriously harming many more people? More to the point ask yourself why are they being allowed to force draconian laws for a virus more harmful than the Flu Virus?

Some of my product revelations:
